CAMP BIRDSALL EDEY'S SUMMER INHABITANTS

(McGarry Photo Center)

The Warren-Forest Council of the Girl Scouts of America is currently holding its summer camp sessions at Camp Birdsall Edey, located on the Grunderville road, southwest of Warren. The local scout body has leased the site from the Allegheny National Forest Service since 1939, and this year forty-three girls are enjoying the comforts of its natural setting. Mrs. Shirley Hanawalt, returning to the site after an absence of ten years, is the 1960 summer sessions director.

For the first summer session, which began on Wednesday, July 6, and which will terminate this Sunday, the forty-three lassies are divided into three units, namely the Skytop, the Pipeline, and the Mountaineer divisions. Each unit has three counselors, and all activities held during the twelve-day session are planned separately by each unit and its advisor. The swimming classes, the lunch and dinner meals, and evening programs are all planned and carried out by the organization as a whole.

One of the highlights of the current congregation was Visitors Day, which was held Wednesday of this week, when over one hundred persons came to enjoy a day at the camp. Each girl had a visitor, for the most part a parent or parents who came to quench that ever-present camp homesickness, but everyone thoroughly enjoyed the day's festivities, which were featured by a water show at the camp's 60 by 22 foot pool and a group sing, led by Hilary Kay.

The older girls at the session, which is held for scouts from fifth through tenth grades, will be hosts to thirty lads this evening at a gala social event. First on the agenda is a swim for the combined group, followed by a cook-out at the camps' nineteen tents. A dance at the recreation building will close out the evening.

Miss Ursula Johnson, the Warren-Forest Council Girl Scout Executive Director, wishes to announce that openings are still available for the second summer session which will begin Tuesday, July 19. Any girls interested in attending the camp should contact the local scout office at 404 Market st. where the phone number is RA3-4990 or call the Birdsall Edey camp, RA3-5746.

Fourth row: Mrs. Ethel Schreckengost, head cook, Mrs. Shirley Hanawalt, program director Nancy Carlson, unit leaders Connie Jenkins and Sally Slate, counselor Peggy Drum, waterfront assistant Hilary Kay, waterfront director Joan Specht, counselors Molly Wendelboe, Sue Ensworth, and Myrt Bairstow, nurse Mary A'Harrah, counselor Norma Kirk, and assistant cook Margaret Huntington.

RAISING THE FLAG each morning at 8 a.m. is traditional at the Girl Scouts' summer camp at Birdsall Edey. Here Kathy Bayer, Sara Meacham, Debbie Shirk, Penny Shattuck, Nancy Morris and Helen Christy take part in the Wednesday ceremony.

The Editor Notes . . .

When this was being put together last night it seemed to be obvious from tv commentaries that Lyndon Johnson was going to be the running mate of John Kennedy. In this we find a move so contradictory that it turns the Democrat convention into the full bloomed farce that it and most conventions are from the very start.

Kennedy and Johnson are supposed to represent opposite poles of thinking and were toe-to-toe in opposition and in policy in pre-convention action. In addition there was a civil rights plank inserted in the platform which was anathema to the southern states who certainly are represented by Johnson.

Most of the people who were disappointed over Kennedy were for such men as Symington or Stevenson. Johnson was not acceptable to them as a presidential candidate and it is inconceivable that he could be accepted with good face by them for an office which may lead to the chief executive's desk.

The fact that one man had over 800 votes and the other had over 400 does not mean that Johnson is the man most wanted by those 800 Kennedy supporters. A vote without Kennedy might show a vast share of his followers going to a Symington, and in such a case even some of the Johnson delegates might switch.

If Kennedy represents a new trend in the party and if he sets himself up as a friend of labor, the racial minorities, and others who are against Johnson's record, and who were responsible in large part for the failure of Johnson's wagon to get rolling, it seems inconsistent to ask these independents to support such a ticket.

We doubt if the Democrats needed Johnson to save the South. Where else did the South have to go? It would have been more logical and certainly fairer to sincere Kennedy admirers to have chosen a good middle western friend of the farmer with ideals that appeal to the progressives.

LOS ANGELES -- So much of what has been happening here seems almost ludicrously irrelevant against the backdrop of the fearful sweep of events in the far corners of the earth. It is as though an old-fashioned Fourth of July picnic were being held in the midst of a hurricane.

The words spoken by the delegates and their leaders have often been brave words, professedly bold words. But before the ink was dry they were out of date. From Cuba, from Leopoldville, from London, Moscow, Washington comes the roar of revolutionary change moving at a pace so fast that the time-worn machinery of a political convention could not hope to keep up with it.

There is another reason why what has been said and done here has for those present and participating seemed to be extraneous and even pointless. This is not so much because from the start a tight, shrewd organization was advertised as having things under control. Almost every convention has seen this same kind of organization, and customarily it is responsible for putting over the winning candidate.

But more than ever before this convention has seemed to be a colossal stage show for the benefit of television. The three big, bunting-draped islands on which the TV cameras are mounted dominate the scene in the arena blocking the view, one would guess, of a third to a half of the delegates seated on the floor.

The lights beating down on the platform and on the delegation chairmen from time to time are a fierce kind of solvent. They have a withering force. The machine itself is so enormous, so complicated, that what comes out of it is bound to seem dwarfed and unimportant.

In the solvent of the relentless camera, not only words but reputations have been leached away. On the giant stage created for an audience of 60 or 70 million, the actors are far smaller than life-size. Whether when it is all over the damage that has been done can be repaired is the question.

Now where has the process been more cruel than in the California delegation. The reputation of Gov. Ednund G. (Pat) Brown has been gravely damaged. It seems hard to believe that only a few months ago he was listed as a Presidential possibility, an alternative to Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Vacillating under pressures from one side and the other, Brown emerged with the effectiveness of his delegation largely nullified and his own role reduced close to the vanishing point. Part of his trouble, of course, has been the kind of division that can be found in the Democratic party in many areas. On one side is the old organization, typified in this state by oilman Edwin L. Pauley and those who have helped to foot the bill for greasing and machinery. On the other side are the California Democratic clubs which have come into being in recent years as a challenge to the old-line Democrats.

The Democratic clubs represent the independents, the mavericks, the eggheads, the oddballs, the idealists -- the core, in other words, of the support of Adlai Stevenson in this convention. They helped to elect Brown two years ago with a majority of more than one million, although it should be added that the quarreling in the Republican party gave him a big headstart. So caught betwixt and between, Brown has emerged as a sadly reduced figure, failing in the practical goal of every politician to ride the horse he believed certain to be the winner.

In the Minnesota delegation, the same conflict was evident. Through long, weary hours Sen. Hubert Hum-

DR. JOHN L. ROBERTSON announces the opening of his office at 2 Hertzstet st. on Monday, July 18.

Dr. Robertson graduated from Warren high school in 1946 and received his bachelor of arts degree from The University of Pennsylvania in 1950. He graduated from The University of Pennsylvania Medical School in 1954 and interned at The Harrisburg Polyclinic Hospital from 1954 to 1955, being licensed that same year. He served one year of residency in internal medicine at Harrisburg Polyclinic Hospital from 1955 to 1956. Later he served as a captain in the U. S. Army Medical Corps where he was assistant chief of internal medicine at Ft. George G. Meade Army Hospital for two years.

For the past two years he has been a resident physician in internal medicine at The Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit, Mich.

Dr. Robertson will be the third generation of practicing physicians in Warren. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. H. R. Robertson, 412 Third ave., and the grandson of Mrs. William M. Robertson and the late Dr. William Robertson. Mrs. John Robertson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Smith of 26 Water st.

Dr. and Mrs. Robertson and their three daughters will reside at 44 Glade ave. in Warren.

phrey and Gov. Orville Freeman fought it out, and essentially on the same lines -- organization, the pressure to be on the winning side, and the pull of the Stevensonian attraction for the independent spirit.

In this sea of conflict under the television lights, it has been difficult, if not impossible, merely to stand still and be grateful for neither gains nor losses. Gov. David Lawrence of Pennsylvania has been more successful than most. He held his own stance and let nature take its course with his big delegation, meanwhile admitting ruefully in private the pressures he was under.

The curbs applied by television for the vast unseen audience are real enough. Young Sen. Frank Church, the keynoter, had learned his keynote speech by heart. But he was told by the managers of the show that he would have to read it from the teleprompter rather than recite it from memory, since only by reading it off a movable tape would he present the correct angle to the cameras. In advance of his speech, he made two trial films, one reading from the teleprompter, one reciting from memory. The test convinced him the technicians were right.

Perhaps all that one can say, hopefully, is that we have not yet learned to live in this strange world. The Gettysburg Address read from a teleprompter might not have gone unnoticed as it did on that memorable occasion when the popular orator of the time captured the plaudits. But the words spoken by Lincoln had the sound of immortality, which is why they have lived, and that may be the real lesson of this somewhat sad occasion.

Card Plan Parking
On Warren Lots

The installation of a Card Plan Parking program in all city operated off-street parking lots in Warren will become effective August 1st, according to Jake Levinson, Warren Parking Authority chairman. The plan will operate in conjunction with the meters now being used.

The charge for parking will be $5 a month or $50 a year, whichever the patron chooses. If the subscriber pays by the month he will receive a different colored card each month which he attaches to the sun visor of his car, and in turn positions the visor toward the windshield when parking. The patron who pays by the year will be given a white card.

Subscribers to this plan will apply at the Warren Municipal building for their cards before the beginning of the month he is paying for. The card will entitle the car to be parked at anytime during the month in any of the off-street parking lots.

At a recent meeting the Parking Authority also voted to discontinue the 65 reserved parking spaces now held in the parking lots and will meter these spaces.

MISS CHRISTINE LUNN

Christine Lunn, 91, died yesterday morning at 5 a. m. at the home of her niece, Miss Hester Lunn, with whom she resided, at 1016 W. Fifth ave., Warren.

Miss Lunn was born in Sweden on November 30, 1868, and came to Warren from Sweden with her parents in 1870. She was a member of the First Methodist Church, the W.S.C.S., and the S.F. of A. Lodge. She is survived by several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements are in the charge of Peterson's Funeral Home. Friends will be received starting this evening at 7 o'clock. The Rev. Culmer Schultz will conduct funeral services there on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Oakland Cemetery, Warren.

MRS. EMMETT JAMES PONSOLL

Edith Sophia Larson Ponsoll, 54, of 883 W. 5th ave., Warren, died suddenly at her home on Tuesday evening at 5:45 o'clock. Mrs. Ponsoll was born in Dalsland, Sweden on Nov. 15, 1905. She had been a resident of the Warren-Jamestown area for the past 38 years, and was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Surviving Mrs. Ponsoll are her husband, Emmett James Ponsoll, two sons, Robert J. and Richard A. Ponsoll of Warren; one daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Conley of Syracuse, N. Y.; three grandchildren, and three brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services will be conducted in St. Paul's Lutheran Church this afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the Rev. Carl E. Nelson officiating. Burial will be at the convenience of the family. Gibson's Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

“And Tell The U. N. We Also Protest The Aggressive Attitude Of The Democratic Party”

The Editor Notes . . .

There are millions of American voters who will support with enthusiasm the first party that will offer a solid front on the ideals which it so loudly applauds. Kennedy has raised many doubts through this very weakness. He is almost a big man, but he constantly hedges at critical points when he must declare himself, and has reached his present peak by much fence tip-toeing down through the years since 1956.

He could have gone far toward convincing his followers that he really believes in the progressive ideals about which he speaks so smoothly and acts so questionably. Opposition to his inconsistency was obvious in the reaction of the powerful state groups which had assured him the nomination. They didn't want to swallow the Johnson choice but also wanted party harmony at so late an hour.

If they chose Johnson last night to team with Kennedy it was not the bold move for which people today are yearning. It placed them in the common political posture of attempting to be all things to all people. We are back to the position of having neither party as a representative of conservative or progressive thinking. Many independents now will toss a coin. They have been denied a choice.

You may come back with the question, "Where do the liberals have to turn?" Certainly not to Nixon.

But there are two possibilities and neither is helpful to the Democrats. The GOP chiefs can get smart and choose Rockefeller. If Nixon is the man, the liberals may stay home.

Again we have watched a convention that is supposed to represent the choice of our major leaders in this democracy. And again we wonder how a truly informed public can tolerate it.

We have seen a man power himself into the presidential nomination. Having gained it he did not hesitate to power his way through in the matter of the vice presidential choice, despite the displeasure of his followers. In this we must admit he was boldly consistent.

However, the liberal element has one consolation. The election of Johnson would remove him from the controlling post he has held in the Senate and through which he has blocked much progressive legislation. His loss also puts a kink in the coalition of conservative Republicans and Southern Democrats which has been a continual bother

WOMAN SHOPLIFTER

During the regular Wednesday store hours in Warren the borough police apprehended a 31-year-old mother of three children for shoplifting from two downtown establishments. The local woman had taken goods amounting to $13.50 from the two stores, and she readily admitted the offense upon questioning.

The police arraigned the woman before Justice of the Peace Martha Lawson, and she plead guilty to the charge. She was ordered to pay a $25 fine and costs under the new shoplifting law passed in 1959.

PAINT BID OPENED

The Warren County Board of Commissioners Thursday received and opened only one bid for the painting of a house which sets on the Hoffman Children's Home property and which is used primarily for a source of income for the County. No action will be taken on the bid until Monday afternoon at 2 p. m.

Submitting the lone bid was the T. J. Scalise painting firm, and the amount was $448.

ROUSE HOME INSPECTION

An inspector from the State Department of Public Welfare was in Warren Thursday to survey the general conditions of the Rouse Home in Youngsville, and it was reported that the Home is seemingly in very satisfactory condition.

Only one recommendation was made, that being that a registered nurse be employed at the Home. The inspector also stated to the Warren County Board of Commissioners, who are in charge of the Rouse estate, that they may have to consider hiring more staff personnel in the not-too-distant future.

OBSERVATIONS

By Bob Walsh

WHO CHOSE KENNEDY?

We think Kennedy is a promising young man who may be just what we need in Washington. We believe he is intelligent, honest, and dedicated. But we do not like the way he was chosen to represent the Democratic party, and we don't like the manner in which Vice President Nixon has been nursed along for a similar GOP spot.

There are aspects of the Kennedy candidacy which we approve. If he can be elected perhaps the religious handicap which has eliminated many good men from even trying will become a secondary consideration and be relegated to the grounds in which we have buried witchcraft and other early American blinders.

But the fact remains that the Democratic convention was not an open event in which all had a chance to be nominated. The Kennedy money had been poured out for many months and every stop was pulled to assure the maximum of pressure on all who could be influenced to support the New England scion.

There were few informed writers who were not predicting that the odds favored Kennedy on an early ballot, and no chance was given Johnson. If Kennedy had failed it was believed the task again would have fallen to Stevenson.

Senator Humphrey who many top analysts believe to be the best man for the job never had a chance. It wasn't his ability which kept him from being a major contestant. It was his lack of funds. In fact, this applied to most of the potential candidates, none of whom could be called poor by the standards of the average man, but all of whom were no match for Kennedy money when it came to throwing it down the drain for any little move that might be worth an ounce of power to the Kennedy campaign engine.

We hesitate to use Kennedy as a horrible example, because he is not horrible and he is quite capable of being a good president. But the system by which he was chosen, and which is used by both political parties, is not truly democratic; is not a good example of the American way of life as we choose to describe it in our world-wide boasting; and is as antiquated as the maze of political subdivision lines which entwine our map and strangle modern advances needed to keep pace in a fast-moving world.

THE ANSWER?

We do not propose to substitute a popularity contest for the highest office in the land, but we do suggest that the people should be given a choice at the primaries in every state in the union. This primary could be preceded by conventions at which each party would select two or three candidates.

If this had been done before the primaries in 1960 the Democrats of the nation might be making a choice between Kennedy, Stevenson, Johnson, Symington, and Humphrey. This could be awkward and the convention probably should come up with no more than three of these leaders for the voters to nominate.

The Republicans then could choose between Rockefeller and Nixon, without the professionals deciding it for them far in advance of the convention.

There will be some who will ask why Rockefeller didn't make it if money controls conventions. The answer is that Nixon may not have a Rockefeller fortune but he has hard-shelled conservatives behind him who have enough cash to match Rockefeller dollar for dollar. And he is the vice president.

We also believe there should be a limitation on funds that can be spent on such campaigns, and these funds should be provided by the taxpayer. Private fortunes should be minimized in their political power.

This would not mean a heavy burden on the taxpayers because they already are indirectly paying the campaign bill. People do not spend millions for the control of important offices if they do not expect it to be of even greater value to them than the amounts they have invested. There are exceptions, of course, such as the wealthy family which is willing to buy the honor, but the usual backing of wealthy groups certainly is not altruistic.

SO WHAT

We keep writing this, as do many other editors and columnists throughout the nation. And we even hear some promises occasionally from the direction of Washington, but nothing comes of it. Once the smoke has settled in those convention rooms and the election is a cold fact of yesterday, the people resign themselves and fail to press for action.

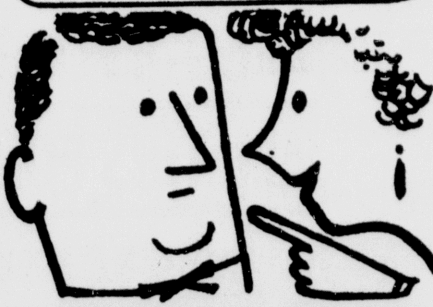

In fact the public does nothing about it at any time, and the only reason officials deign to admit the need for a change is the rash of harping by numerous writers, such as you now are reading. The tv convention coverage in recent years has accentuated the farcical show of democracy which obtains at these events and there are some public consciences which actually prick enough to inspire brave words about changes.

But such changes must be made by the political machines and as long as they can hold their control through the present method, no soap-boxing by crusading party members will be more potent than luke warm air.

THE QUIET DEMOCRATS

By Walter Lippmann

For a Democratic convention this one is, as of Tuesday morning, exceptionally quiet and undramatic. Where is Armageddon? Where are the ideological clashes, the sectional conflicts, and the personal duels which have so regularly in the past made the Democratic convention such a great show? For the old timers there is something missing, and presumably therefore there must be something wrong, especially in view of the fact that the convention is nominating a controversial young man in a time of worldwide turbulence.

What is the explanation of this unusual and puzzling harmony? There are those who explain it by the devil theory of politics. In the devil theory everything you do not like is due to the sinister machinations of a hidden conspiracy, be it the Communists, the Catholics, the Masons, the Jews, the Wall Street bankers, the United Nations, or Walter Reuther. For the devil theorists anything they are opposed to must have been plotted, paid for, and carried out by an enemy. The whole history of man is one long unceasing battle with conspiracies engineered by the devil and his agents.

For those who see life in this way the absence of conflict at Los Angeles means, can only mean, that the convention has been rigged, that the delegates have been bought, bullied, and seduced by young Kennedy and his father's money. The result, they say, is a preternaturally quiet convention.

To reject this view is not to forget that the Kennedy campaign has been rough, and to suppose that he has collected his delegates by nothing but polite persuasion and the unanswerable briefing of the professors from Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The Kennedy tactics to push aside his rivals have been rough but they have been the normal tactics when the game of politics is played to win. The Kennedy tactics do not differ from the tactics Nixon has used to push aside Rockefeller. It would be naive to suppose that money and its equivalent in the promise of favors to come is not used in the game of politics.

But these tactics have always been employed when there was a real contest because the succession was open. Johnson is no mean tactician himself, and he certainly does not lack money. The rigging theory does not explain the quiet of this convention.

The explanation, I venture to think, must begin by recognizing that 1960 marks the passing of the old political generation and the appearance of the new. With Eisenhower and Truman the generation of the war leaders is retired, and the generation of those who were in the war but too young to command — Kennedy and Nixon — are taking over.

The harmony at Los Angeles about Kennedy can best be explained by looking at the part played by Adlai Stevenson. He is, one might say, a younger member of the older generation. It was his refusal to enter a combination to block Kennedy, and not the rigging of the convention, which brought about the stampede to Kennedy. The comparative harmony on issues, which have in the past divided the party irreconcilably, is due, I believe, to the passage of time. The party has not settled all its issues. But it has outgrown them to a point where, especially in the field of civil rights, there has been an enormous change of feeling in the younger generation. Above all, in place of the old issues there are new ones — revolving around the problem of national power and of public need — which are much more interesting.

This shift of interest is a national, not at all a merely partisan Democratic phenomenon. It is manifest in the Rockefeller insurgency which has inside the Republican party far more sympathizers than it now has avowed supporters.

All in all then, the Democrats feel, perhaps rightly, that they are riding the wave of the future.

ASIDES

INTO THE DEPTHS

While most of us are looking star-ward in this age of space-piercing plans and are wondering what, if anything, is on the moon besides Soviet eyes, there is some exploring being done within easier reach that may unveil some amazing forms of life and information. We are referring to the sea and such wonders as the canyon which is bigger than seven Grand Canyons, one on top of another, and is so long it would extend from New York to Kansas City.

This is the Tonga Trench, almost 35,000 feet, eight miles, deep. It has been seen by no human eyes and is known to only a few.

There also is a mountain range called the Mid-Atlantic Ridge, of which only the very tops are visible in the form of the Azores, Ascension Island, and St. Paul's Rocks. It runs from Iceland to Tierra del Fuego, is as rugged as the Rockies, and has peaks that average 5,000 feet in height.

You can read about these and other secrets in "Frontiers of the Sea" by Robert C. Cowen. It is a July book, published by Doubleday, and costs $4.95. For over a century man has been probing the deeper areas. Previously he did little more than use the shallow water of the sea for his purposes and knew nothing of the great depths and the mysteries that lie there.

New methods now make ocean-bottom exploring possible, but we have done no more than touch the strange lands below and in fact have not even done that to the real depths. What will we find. Strange creatures? Lost civilizations? Moon inhabitants who left their baking home only to be drowned in their new one?

The history of man travels in strange cycles.

DRIVING PHYSICALS

The first batch of Pennsylvanians to take an examination as a part of their qualification for the right to drive has been through the mill and the percentage of rejections should not bother most of us. Of the 12,411 who applied, only eight were rejected, sixty-four thousandths of one per cent.

The oldest person to apply was eighty-five. He passed.

This is a part of the new policy in Pennsylvania, requiring physicals for those who want a learner's permit. Of the applicants the first month, 129 were over sixty-one, and only two of them were refused permits.

Examining physicians are looking for the following:

Neurological disorders that will prevent reasonable control of a car.

Severe cardiac or circulatory disorder, including hypertension.

Neuropsychiatric disorders.

Conditions causing lapses of consciousness, such as epilepsy, narcolepsy, hysteria, and others. (Exceptions may be made if no episodes have occurred for two years.)

Chronic alcoholism.
Narcotics addiction.
Uncontrolled diabetes.
Uncontrolled epilepsy.

UNUSUAL STUDIES

The second three-week term of Chautauqua Center will feature several subjects never before available at the lake resort. They include ceramics, sculpture, painting, educational tests and measurements, diagnosis of reading problems, American literature from 1915 to present, the Soviet Union in World Affairs, and workshops in religious audio visual communications, creative teaching, and literacy techniques. Three credits will be given by the Syracuse university for these courses which start July 25.

Matter of Fact . . .

WISE AND FOOLISH VIRGINS

By Joseph Alsop

LOS ANGELES

The parable of the wise and foolish virgins has long provided the classic contrast between hard-heads and addle-pates. But after this Democratic convention, the old Bible story may well be replaced by the story of the wise and foolish politicians.

Pennsylvania's owlish Gov. David Lawrence and the powerful Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago have turned in performances that deserve a permanent place in a "how to" book for budding politicians. Gov. "Pat" Brown of California and Gov. Robert Meyner of New Jersey have met all the requirements of these manuals' "how not to" departments, with truly glorious maladroitness.

Meanwhile, the organization of Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts has also dealt with these four magnates in a way that deserves a separate chapter, perhaps best entitled, "How to Get Your Way With Politicians, Both Bone-headed and Smart."

Gov. Brown, to begin, is momentarily in all the headlines because he has at last let the shoe drop. He has said he is for Kennedy. But he has done this in a way that has reduced his credit and injured his prestige to the utmost limit.

Long ago, when there was a question of Kennedy's entering the California primary, Gov. Brown made a hard and fast commitment to join the Kennedy camp if the Massachusetts Senator just left California alone and won all the other primaries. Since the Kennedy victory in Oregon, the hard, bleak fact of this commitment has continuously stared poor Brown in the face. His response has resembled the behavior of Chuchundra, the timid muskrat in Kipling's "Rikki Tikki Tavi," who never dared venture into the middle of a room, and always scuttled round and round the walls, wailing the while.

In other words, the unhappy Brown came within an ace of keeping his promise to Kennedy at least a dozen times, and then backed away at the last instant because he did not want to irritate the anti-Kennedy forces in California. In the last twenty-four hours before the California caucus on Sunday, it was on-again Saturday morning, off-again Saturday night, on-again Sunday morning. And after Brown finally kept his promise at the caucus, the Governor went on a television show, and publicly took back about half what he had just said to the California delegates.

A dear, good man, but just a mite indecisive, is now the political community's verdict on Brown. But contrast the political community's verdict on Gov. David Lawrence of Pennsylvania, who would dearly like to have stopped Kennedy but found that this operation was impractical.

In effect, Gov. Lawrence explored all the alternatives to Kennedy with methodical care, over a period of many months. But he kept his own council, and he retained his freedom of maneuver. He was not flurried, even when Kennedy began to make important gains, unauthorized by Lawrence, in the Pennsylvania delegation itself. He still had a lot to offer when he majestically descended from his plane in Los Angeles, with Kennedy emissaries and representatives of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas frisking around the ramp like eager spaniels.

The Lawrence choice was intimated there and then, when he chose the chief old pro of the Kennedy camp, the astute John Bailey of Connecticut, as his companion for the long drive into town. In a business-like way, but still without making any firm commitment, Lawrence thereupon went to work on the convention situation with the other pro-Kennedy professionals, Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago, David T. Wilentz of New Jersey, and Carmine DiSapio and Michael Prendergast of New York.

There was great joy in the Kennedy camp when the word went round that "Dave Lawrence is going to be all right." Even so, it was not until Saturday evening that Lawrence told Sen. Kennedy in plain terms, that he really was going to be all right. Great relief, considerable gratitude, and genuine respect for the tough old realist of Harrisburg, were the reactions to this major event.

Meanwhile, Lawrence's neighbor-Governor, Meyner of New Jersey, was managing his affairs in an exactly contrary manner. Many months ago, Kennedy made enormous inroads in the New Jersey delegation, which was officially pledged to Meyner as a favorite son. Meyner had the option of running to the head of the procession, and thereby making a very comfortable best of a business he did not much like.

But instead of imitating the Pennsylvania Governor's example, the New Jersey Governor almost hysterically clung to the "privilege of having his name presented to the convention"—as though an empty nominating speech and a phony, feeble demonstration on the convention floor were worth what Meyner will undoubtedly pay for them.

As for Mayor Daley of Chicago, he always wanted to be for Kennedy, but he also wanted to be shown that Kennedy was as good as he suspected. "The atmosphere is very good," was the Kennedy camp's only report from Chicago, for months after anxious months. Then, just a few weeks before the convention itself, Daley decided he had been shown enough, and he made his commitment. But he told no one but Kennedy, because he wanted time for the massive, rock solid line-up of his delegation which he finally achieved.

Thus one can predict with great assurance that in a Kennedy White House, the red carpet will always be out for Daley and Lawrence, while Brown and Meyner may perhaps be asked to a tourist tea. Such are the practical rewards of political wisdom and political folly.

THREE CENTURIES OF AMERICAN HISTORY

America - from Colonial times to the dawn of the present century - spread out in front of you.

Where? At Dearborn, Michigan, site of the Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, where a million visitors flock each year from every part of the country.

Start with 1640. See how a New England Pilgrim really lived in a tiny house built near Sudbury, Massachusetts.

Move onto 1652. Visit the Susquehanna House from Maryland, with its King Charles II and Lord Baltimore associations.

Then on to 1822. See the stately Connecticut mansion where Noah Webster compiled his first dictionary.

Or try 1840. Take a look at the Logan County Courthouse, where young Abe Lincoln first practiced law in Illinois.

Or look at 1880 - your grandmother probably set up housekeeping in a home like Sarah Jordan's, from Menlo Park, New Jersey.

You can roam back and forth almost anywhere you like, through 300 years of American life - it's easier than you think and you can see real buildings and objects - not reproductions - all carefully moved from their original sites.

Henry Ford is the man who made it all possible. He wanted to preserve a historical cross section of America. The result: 200 acres of Americana, from candlemaking to steam locomotives, from the colonies to the machine age.

Greenfield Village is laid out like a town, but you will find things there that are found in no ordinary town.

The bicycle shop moved from Dayton, Ohio, for instance - where the Wright Brothers made and tested parts for their first flying machine - exact to the smallest detail. It almost seems as if Orville and Wilbur were out to lunch.

Or the laboratory of Thomas Edison - straight from Menlo Park, New Jersey - birthplace of the first light bulb, phonograph and a thousand other inventions. When Edison gave it the final inspection in 1929, when he was there for the dedication of the Museum and Village, he was awed with the accuracy of every detail. He jokingly said to Ford: "Almost perfect, Henry, except we never used to keep the old place this clean."

There are no department stores or supermarkets in Greenfield Village. But where else in the world but the Museum's "Street of Early American Shops" can you see 22 establishments such as those of a pewterer, a blacksmith, a tinker, a glassblower, a potter and even an early American silk mill? Unique, as museums go.

But this is only a small part of what you can do. If you've wondered what it was like to take a steamboat ride, try it yourself and see! The sternwheeler Suwanee will take you for a nostalgic, smoke-spouting voyage, complete with steam whistle and splashing paddlewheel.

The Stanley Steamer is here, too - plus Henry Ford's original two-cylinder model of 1896 - included in the world's largest collection of restored antique automobiles. The history of the locomotive is laid out before your eyes. And the Museum has the most comprehensive collection of American antique furniture and other decorative arts to be found anywhere.

But one of the things that visitors find so appealing is the decidedly un-museumlike atmosphere. You can wander through the Museum and Village indefinitely - and needn't confine yourself to "just looking" either.

Have your portrait taken - in tintype, of course. From there, wander over to the general store, browse among the corn cobs, pitchforks, and fancy cravats, or buy a few jawbreakers and some rock candy.

If the children are along, let them see the sights from a colorful pony cart. Or try the Cotswold forge, where the art of wrought iron working is still very much alive. The Village post office of the 1830's may not offer the latest in postage vending machines, but you can still post a letter there that will be mailed to any part of the world.

There are even advertisements - with a unique flavor. One poster for Kirk's Flake White Soap depicts a grimy tramp penning a testimonial which reads:

"I used your soap two years ago and have not used any other since."

It's a realism of the American past that Henry Ford set out to create - and he succeeded. For anyone touring the country, it is hard to imagine a more colorful survey of Americana.

And it's more than just a place to "see." Here in Dearborn, American history comes to life - before your eyes.

Who says history is dull?

Since 1941 the U.S. Treasury has replaced more than 1,300,000 Savings Bonds—at no extra cost to the owners.

OUR TELEGENIC AUTHORS

(John Crosby is on vacation. During his absence his column is being conducted by guest writers. Today's guest columnist is George Kirgo, author and TV playwright.)

The publishing world--by its own admission the last outpost of sedate good taste--is aflame with unbecoming controversy. Simon & Schuster, Harcourt & Brace, Random & House, and their colleagues haven't had their tweeds pressed in weeks. They've been accused of showing favoritism to authors who are TELEGENIC.

It's alleged that no book has a Lin Yutang's chance of making the best seller lists today unless its author is a PERSONALITY, a charmer armed with a witty excerpt, a winning smile, and a guest shot on TV.

Certainly there's no denying the power of television. As an author who, during the past year, has chalked up some thirty hours air time on the Jack Paar Show, I can offer personal testimony to its might. Prior to Paar, I had written a book (I forget the name) which, despite excellent reviews ("The New York Times" called it a novel), was not selling well. Since my appearances on the Paar Show, however, it's been moving steadily. Just last month a copy was sold.

Others can report even more fabulous success stories, of soaring to unbelievable tax brackets after five minutes with Paar, Dave Garroway, Ed Sullivan, or even Man Without a Gun (he plugs books instead of Indians). If publishers tend to cater to their author-personalities, who can blame them?

But there are those who say that plugging a book on television is crass, commercial, and beneath the dignity of a dedicated writer. Furthermore, it is claimed that best sellers from the pens of author-personalities are synthetic, electronically fashioned, and altogether the result of witty excerpts and winning smiles. Most of the deprecation comes from authors who flunked their TV auditions. Let's face it: some authors just don't write witty excerpts; or, if they do, they've got LOSING smiles.

What those critics fail to remember is that authors have ALWAYS been personalities, and that book-plugging flourished long before the advent of TV. Take Dante, an early Italian author-personality. Though suffering from arthritic hands, he never missed an autograph-party. He went through hell plugging his "Inferno."

Take Chaucer. This author-personality detested traveling (he got car-sick very easily); yet he undertook an arduous journey specifically to promote his "Troilus and Cressida" at a book festival in Canterbury. (This personal-appearance trip provided him with material for another best seller--I forget the name--but that was incidental.)

And Keats, a healthy, strapping young man who couldn't sell a sonnet until one day he had a brilliant idea. He decided to contract tuberculosis, aware that the malady would transform him into an author-personality (TB was the TV of his time). And overnight--well, we all know what happened. (Sure, he died, but he made the best seller lists, didn't he? Better posthumously than not at all.)

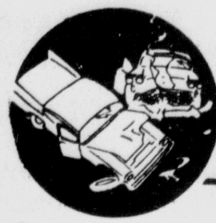

In our time, you can't tell me that the sales of Hemingway's books haven't been stimulated by the public image he's created--big-game hunter, bullfight aficionado, bearded tough guy. I happen to know that he can't stand the sight of blood, that his passion for the bull is a lot of, and that he'd shave off those scratchy whiskers in a minute if it weren't for his weak chin.

Then there's Faulkner, who fascinates book-buyers by playing the recluse on that secluded Mississippi farm of his, never seeing another human being. The truth is, he's the most gregarious guy you ever saw slip champagne from a show-girl's slipper. While we imagine him locked up in a cotton gin, agonizing over complex sentence structure, he's not even in Mississippi. He's on the Riviera, whooping it up--under an assumed name, naturally. Calls himself Porfirio Rubirosa.

So, a word of advice to you authors devoid of personality. Get your teeth capped. Bear in mind that Charles Dickens was the Arthur Godfrey of the nineteenth century. And if plugging was good enough for the author of "A Christmas Carol," it's good enough for you.

(P. S. But don't become one of those bores who plug their books incessantly--on elevators, at funerals, even in guest columns written for vacationing John Crosbys. And for further advice I refer you to my forthcoming book--Sept., Simon & Schuster, $2.95--"How To Write Ten Different Best Sellers Now--in Your Spare Time--and Become the First Author on Your Block, Unless There's an Author Already Living on Your Block, in Which Case You'll Become the Second Author on Your Block, and That's Okay, Too, and Other Stories.")

SPORT

TIPS ON T.V.

SATURDAY --

BASEBALL. Baltimore vs. Chicago White Sox at Chicago, 2:25, WBEN. New York vs. Detroit at Detroit, 2:25, WICU and WGR. Los Angeles vs. Giants at San Francisco, 3:55, WKBW.

RACING. $100,000 Monmouth Handicap for three-year-olds and up, at 5:30 on some NBC stations.

SUNDAY --

BASEBALL. New York vs. Tigers at Detroit, 2:25, WICU. Orioles vs. White Sox at Chicago, 2:25, WBEN.

BOWLING. Carmen Salvino vs. Lee Joulgard, 1:00 to 1:30, WKBW.

THE FUTURE

The Professional Golf Association tournament will be televised July 23 and 24 by NBC. There will be great interest in Arnold Palmer's effort to add this big one to his Masters and Open crowns.

TE LA DI O

FREE RECORDS PAYOLA-ISH

As far as the listening audience is concerned the effect on program quality is just as bad when contributed records are used as was the case with payola. The ethical comparison probably is not too parallel, but the enjoyment of good music is denied the listener.

When radio stations play music because the records are donated the selection is not guided by quality. The dollar is pulling its rank almost as effectively as if the announcer were paid to spin the platter.

We have listened to programs consisting of strings of records which have been announced as gifts to the station. The entire program in such a case is based on availability and not excellence. We have heard some that were worse than the product of juvenile neophytes, with just as many sour notes.

GOOD NEWS

"Eyewitness to History" will become a regular next fall. The intention is to cover in depth the significant news story of the week. The time is 10:30 to 11 Friday evenings.

BRIGHAM YOUNG SONG

Leonard Kastle's opera "Deseret", which originally was "Brigham Young", will be heard over NBC, November 12, from 4 to 6. Samuel Chotznoff will be the producer and the part of Young will be sung by Kenneth Smith. Judith Raskin will sing the part of Young's latest soon-to-be wife.

NOTORIOUS ROGUES

The most notorious rogues in history will be the subjects for a program planned by CBS, and starting September 29. It will be seen every Thursday evening from 7:30 for one hour. Featured will be Arnold Rothstein, Boss Tweed, John Dillinger, Billy the Kid, Serge Rothstein, and one night will deal with Leon Trotsky.

NEW COMIC

Bob Newhart who has been making good as a guest on many programs and is a night club attraction in metropolitan areas will have his own show on CBS this fall, starting October 6. Its spot will be Thursdays, from 10 to 10:30. He will be bucking Groucho Marx and The Untouchables with his satiric comedy. The name will be "The Bob Newhart Show".

HAPPY GOLFERS

The nation's golfers will be pleased to learn that there still is one tournament to be seen on tv this summer. At least one, perhaps we should say. The P.G.A. event will be handled by CBS on July 23 and 24.

TREASURER'S SALE OF SEATED LANDS FOR TAXES FOR THE YEAR 1958

IN COMPLIANCE with and by virtue of the authority vested in me, the undersigned Treasurer of Warren County, by the several Acts of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and specifically the Act approved May 29, 1931, P.L. 280, as amended and supplemented, authorizing and empowering the county treasurer to sell, at public sale, all seated lands upon which taxes levied by any county, borough, town, township, school district, and poor or institution district, are delinquent and remain unpaid, and fixing penalties, terms of sale, etc., I, the said Treasurer of Warren County, will sell at public sale the following properties as hereinafter set forth.

THE PURPOSE of the said sale is to enforce the collection of delinquent taxes, penalties, interest and costs thereon as the said taxes are returned for the year 1958. The said sale will be held in Court Room No. 2 at the Court House in the Borough of Warren, Warren County, Pennsylvania, on MONDAY, AUGUST 1, 1960, AT 10:00 O'CLOCK, A. M., E.D.S.T.

TERMS OF SALE: As soon as the property is struck down, the purchaser shall pay (I) the amount of the purchase money, or (II) such part of the purchase money as may be necessary to pay all taxes, except such taxes as have heretofore been filed as liens in the office of the Prothonotary, and all interest, and costs, plus an additional amount equal to twenty-five per centum of the purchase money. In case said amount is not forth-with paid after the property is struck down, the sale will be avoided and the property immediately put up again for sale by the said Treasurer. In the event the purchaser fails to later make complete settlement at the time and in the manner provided for in said act of May 29, 1931, P.L. 280, as amended and supplemented, any money paid under the terms of this sale will be forfeited and will be disposed of the same as purchase money. After the sale of any property or lands has been confirmed by the Court, where the bid exceeds the taxes, interest and costs, as aforesaid, the purchaser shall make and execute to the said Treasurer, for the use of the persons entitled, a bond for the surplus money that may remain after satisfying and paying all the taxes, interest, costs, and twenty-five per centum of the purchase money paid when the property is struck down, as aforesaid.

TAKE NOTICE ALL PERSONS, owners, or reputed owners, terra tenants, or any person claiming an interest in the following described lots or tracts of land: You are hereby notified that your said property situated in the borough or township, as hereinafter described, has been returned for non-payment of taxes for the year 1958, and unless such taxes, interest, and costs are paid on or before Monday, the First day of August, 1960, at Ten o'clock, A. M., Eastern Daylight Saving Time of said day, the said premises will be sold as above set forth.

Playground Report

The four-day attendance at the borough's playgrounds last week numbered 6,047 despite the generally cool weather. Sweaters were needed at times, but raincoats were not needed at all.

More than 100 children of ages six and seven began taking swimming lessons at the playgrounds with pools. The program is offered daily from 2 to 3 p.m., and the instructors for the classes are Cale Scholes, Lois Schaffer, and Bob Hammerbeck. The YMCA is working in conjunction with the playground committee on the program.

Archery shooting and instruction is also being offered at the Crescent range for the playground's visitors. This class is also being offered daily from 2 to 3 p.m. under the tutelage of Dick Kaufman.

Another phase of the wide variety of courses being offered are the classes in crafts. Mrs. Gail Cowan is the instructor for this interesting program.

Recreation Director Fred Bell also announces that tennis instructions at the Beaty courts will begin Monday for a two-week period. The class, which is being tutored by Dick Mitchell, will be for children from age ten through age eighteen. All persons who desire to participate must register for the tennis instructions.

In inter-playground softball last week the Beaty Juniors subdued Lacy, 12 to 3, and whipped Mulberry, 15 to 0. Beech st. stopped the Mulberry Juniors, 9 to 8, but then lost to Lacy by a 9 to 3 score. Having suffered two earlier defeats, the Mulberry Juniors handed Memorial a loss by a 16 to 5 count.

Last week's special events winners were: Dog show - Darlene Cummings, Joyce Cole, Billy Richards, and Harold and Bruce Cummings, airport; Christine Acklin, Barb Schorman, Tom Celotte, Donna Brooks, Berrie Keller, Nick Szeverenyi, and James and Mark Bruzzi, Beaty; Connie Lynn Haight, Beech st.; Barbara Cross, Bryan Johnson, and Charlotte Passinger, Crescent.

Bubble gum contest - Linda Sheehan and Harold Cummings, airport; Arilla Haight and Jeanne Baker, Beaty; Nikki Pirillo, Beech st.; Henry Dahl, Becky Donaldson, Barbara Salapek, and James Malec, Crescent.

Basketball skills - Nummy Creola, Pizza Pace, and Jim Suppa, airport; Bruce Briggs and Barry Bowers, Beaty; Mike Fadale and Tim Ressler, Beech st.

BANTAMS

In a game called because of darkness in the last half of the fifth inning on Monday, the Dairy Queen annihilated Soda Mineral 43 to 2. T. Nuhfer went seven-for-seven in the lop-sided tilt, and the winning pitcher, Albaugh, slammed out six hits in as many times at bat.

Community Consumer Discount squeezed out a 10 to 9 verdict over Warren Bank and Trust Monday evening at North Warren, the victory going to the starting hurler, Whyte. Nelson absorbed the loss.

For the victors Danny Krumm had two homers, King and Seymour solo circuit clouts. Nelson had a round-tripper for the losing nine.

MIDGETS

Carson Finance outlasted Barnhart-Davis last evening on Memorial field, winning by an 8 to 5 score. Barnhart made an attempt to get back into the game scoring four runs in the late innings, but the attempt proved futile.

Munch and Tomassoni had two-baggers for the losers. Logan smashed two doubles, Bancroft a double and triple, and Tassone a two-bagger for Carson.

BANTAMS

Berenfield knocked Jones Chevy Monday in bantam play by an 11 to 2 count, behind the magnificent pitching of Craig Whitaker who accounted for every out made in the contest as he fanned 18 men.

Gerarde, Clarkson, and Whitaker all had three-base hits for the winning combine.

Weiser Ford whitewashed Parsons Monday evening, 6 to 0, behind the one-hit pitching performance of Larson. Weiser held a 2 to 0 lead going into the top of the final frame at which time they pushed four more runs across the plate.

For Weiser Ford Blum had a double, and Larson and Felton triples. Tim Haight had a two-base knock for Parsons.

MIDGETS

In a contest played at Sheffield last Friday Tiona Lumber edged Bond Electric, 3 to 2. Hurling for the winners, Anderson yielded only two hits, while his mates could account for five scattered safeties off Hunter.

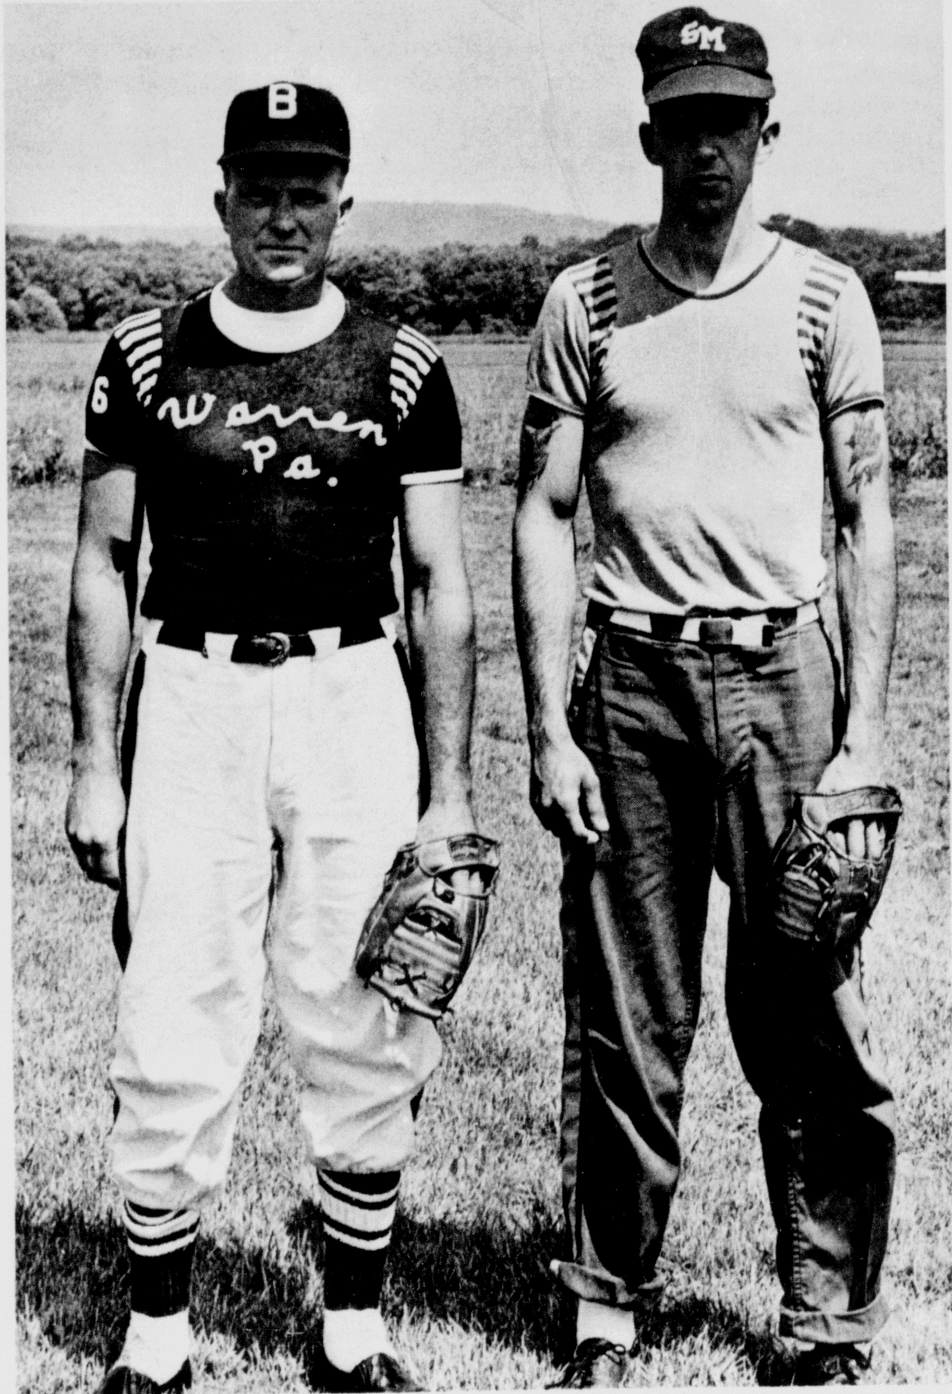

The losers scored both their runs in the initial stanza, and Tiona chopped that lead down with one run in each of the first, third, and fifth innings.

Dahlgren and Anderson had doubles for Tiona Lumber.

In a game staged at Division field last Tuesday Brownies and Morgans downed Walters Hardware, 8 to 2. B & M scored six times in the second inning and twice more in the fourth to wrap up the triumph. Meleen had a double, and Blum and R. Knapp triples for the winners. R. Knapp was the winning hurler, and Shine took the loss.

MOUND MASTERS. Two of the most successful softball pitching products in the tri-state area are Ken Sorensen (left) of the Betts Machine Black Knights and Bud Speicher of the Soda Mineral team. The pair have dueled against each other for several seasons in the City Softball circuit and have combined to give Warren very successful representation in independent and tournament contests.

Just Monday of this week the Black Knights' ace was the winner of a tight 1 to 0 verdict over the lanky Soda star as their two teams met. Sorensen issued three base hits and fanned five men, while Speicher gave up the same number of safeties and whiffed four stick-ers.

Both men have no hit-no run games to their credit and have struck out as high as eighteen men in one single seven-inning tilt. Each will certainly continue to be a nemesis to his opponents, both in city league encounters and independent scraps.

During the latter part of the month of August the two local hurlers will participate in a polio benefit game for the city of Jamestown. They will join Jamestown's Jim Adamczak and other top-notch softball pitchers from the area.

cadet loop as they blasted Chandlers Valley 21 to 6 on Wednesday and clobbered Lander 29 to 3 on Friday. This made a total of fifty runs in two games to their opponents nine.

In the first game Wilson had two homers, and Bosko and Gettings one each for the winners, and in the Friday game Bosko clouted two round-trippers, and Mason and Gettings one each.

INTERMEDIATES

The Kiwanis nine registered an 18 to 10 triumph over Brown Run Lumber last Wednesday at Wilder field. The big frames for the Kiwanians were the first and fourth when they pushed across eight and six runs respectively.

Stewart had a two-bagger for the losers, and Vicander smashed two doubles for the winners. Phanco and Nelson also had two-base blows for the Kiwanians.

JAMIE BELLES FEATURED IN STATELINE EVENT

Even the speedy auto races may have to take a back seat to the intermission festivities at Stateline Speedway above Sugar Grove Saturday evening. Several dozen of Jamestown's Jamie Belles will battle for a greased pig which is to be turned loose on the track during the 20-minute break before the big feature race. It's all a part of the Jamestown Sesquicentennial high-jinx.

Strong favorite in the feature event, a 25-lapper, is Bob Schnars of Busti, who piloted his late model stock to a victory in last week end's main attraction. It was his second win in three weeks.

The first of seven events at the Speedway is slated to get under way at 8:30 p. m.

WEEK END SOFTBALL

The BOW softball league, which was instituted just this season, will wind up its regularly scheduled contest this week end, weather permitting. Saturday evening at 6 p. m. the Betts Black Knights will travel to Bradford to face Emory Hotel, and Soda Mineral is slated for a double bill with Icky's Cookies in Olean. The first game will be staged at Marcus field at 6 p. m., and the second go will be over in Bradnor stadium at 8 p. m.

Sunday both local teams will be in action at the West Side diamond where a big triple-header is in store for the local softball enthusiasts. At 2 p. m. Soda will face Emory Hotel, and at 3:30 p. m. Betts will tangle with league-leading Bluebird Bus. Then at 5 p. m. Soda and Emory will clash once more to wrap up the season.

At a meeting held recently in Bradford with Commissioner Larry Borsa, it was decided that the campaign would close with a Shaughnessy playoff, meaning that the second and third place teams and the first and fourth place teams would meet in a best-of-three set in the first round of eliminations. The final elimination would match the winners.

Bluebird Bus of Olean is presently leading the loop, followed by Betts and Soda Mineral of Warren in that order. In fourth place is the Olean Icky aggregation, and bringing up the last two places are Emory Hotel and Holley Hotel, both of Bradford.

YOUR FOREST RANGER

By Larry Stotz

For more than twenty years Camp Cornplanter - an organization camp situated in the Kinzua Valley on the Allegheny National Forest - has offered youth groups a pleasant outdoor setting in which to carry out their summer programs.

During this period hundreds of boys and girls have spent from one to two weeks in a peaceful little world of tumbling brooks, green forests and rugged hills.

The buildings that house the guests during their stay are of sturdy, rustic design - well constructed and requiring a minimum of maintenance. Spartan simplicity is the key-note to a summer camping experience here.

But in the more than two decades that the camp has been in operation, the maintenance of the buildings and grounds has never quite kept up with the cumulative effects of ordinary wear and tear despite the periodic efforts of small volunteer groups to cope with the problem. It was obvious that Camp Cornplanter needed a "face lifting" if it were to be worthy of the beautiful natural setting in which it is located and of the youth who use its facilities.

Last year the Warren County Association for Retarded Children took over the operation of the camp and proved that under a competent staff, retarded children can benefit immeasurably from an outdoor experience such as Camp Cornplanter can offer.

With future plans calling for increased use of the camp by this worthy organization, the crucial maintenance problem on 22 buildings, a swimming pool, access roads, foot paths and 35 acres of grounds reached formidable proportions.

If a large enough group of volunteers could be found who were willing to work daily as a team for several weeks, most of the critical maintenance problems could be solved reasoned Mrs. Annabel Bolinger, President of the Warren County Association for Retarded Children. So she turned to the American Friends Service Committee for help, and Camp Cornplanter was chosen by them as one of five work camp in the United States to be occupied by a group of young volunteer workers.

Arriving June 25, to work without pay for eight weeks, were eleven girls and ten boys serving under five leaders. They came at their own expense from as far west as California and Oregon and as far north as Maine. In this cosmopolitan group, with many diverse interests but a common desire to be of service to those less fortunate than themselves, were two girls from West Berlin, Germany, and a girl from Valencia, Spain.

They found that there were many things to work on at Camp Cornplanter. Paths had deteriorated and the forest had crowded in among many of the buildings to reclaim ground that it had lost to axe and saw. Foot bridges across the brook had become weakened by rot and needed to be replaced. Buildings were in need of staining. There were new shutters to install, and screens to repair. Cullies slashed the hillsides where the pounding feet of thoughtless boys seeking short cuts to dining hall and swimming pool had knifed through the protective sod and had exposed the soil to the forces of erosion. There were trails to re-work and stream improvement jobs to be done. Overhanging trees needed to be cut away from buildings to let in the sunlight. It was evident to all that there was more than enough work to keep willing hands fully occupied.

At Camp Cornplanter the "what's in it for me" philosophy so prevalent in our materialistic civilization has given way to the "how can I be of service" concept among 21 young people and their leaders. It is a rare privilege to have them with us on the Allegheny National Forest, and we wish them well in their unselfish endeavor.

LES DESPERADOS

BRIANCON, France The Tour de France wheeled out of the mountain village of Cap and started up the lovely green gorge of the river Durance in sparkling sunshine. Last night a storm had come howling down from the Alpine peaks to flog the countryside with hall, but nothing could have been sweeter than this summer morning when the desperados of the road set out to attack the cruelest heights of this whole dizzy bike race around the boundaries of the nation.

Before this day was over, some of the cars accompanying the race would tear their insides out on the mountains which men would conquer on bikes. We would climb above the timberline into the snows of last winter and the cars would cough and groan and sputter but the men would make it under their own power, pedalling 108 miles at an impossible average of more than twenty miles an hour.

Some would finish the sixteenth lap on this three-week's torture wearing bloody scars. Just this morning, Henri Gault was saying as the car joined the parade, the full story had been revealed about Louis Proost, the Belgian who had to give up yesterday. He had broken his hip in a spill, remounted and ridden several miles more before the pain finished him, and that was why he had been crying when he quit.

Henri Gault, a Paris correspondent, told other stories. Earlier in the race another Belgian named Joseph Hoevenaers had a fall that split his scalp from forehead to crown. The doctor bandaged him like a Beduin and he rode on, squandering his strength to overtake the field, until stomach disorders knocked him out a day or so later.

As Henri talked, the road climbed to cross the river at the great dam of Serre-Poncon which has created a vast lake of pale blue water that winds for miles between towering palisades of gray rock. The course now was a shelf hewn out of one of these rock walls. The lake was far below on the left. On the right were mountain-top fortresses from the days of Louis XIV.

For a while it was comparatively easy going past the red roofed villages of Provence. Everywhere, of course, there were crowds and

HORSE SHOW WINNER. Diane Barone (pictured) of North Warren, was the high point winner in the Junior Horse Show sponsored by the senior members of the Y-Bar-U Saddle Club at their club grounds on the Warren-Scandia rd. earlier this month. Miss Diane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Barone, 14 Maple pl., North Warren.

The junior show was for young people 16 years of age and under. The second highest point winner in the show was Addie Beltz, son of Adam Beltz, also of North Warren.

At 1 p. m. Sunday, July 24th, a Senior Horse Show will be held at the club grounds. This is being sponsored by the junior group, which organizes and runs the show on their own. Miss Barone is chairman and on her committee are Mike Rice, Carol Zimmerman and Bob LaJoie. This is the third year that the junior and senior members of the Y-Bar-U club have co-sponsored shows.

At the July 24th show there will be 14 events. The public is invited. There will be no admission charge.

every face wore a smile of happy excitement, for the day the Tour de France comes through is the great day of the year in this remote border land.

In the twelfth century town of Barcelonnette, spectators stood packed along the yard-wide sidewalks or waved from balconies and windows. Farther, long ranks of soldiers flanked the road wearing the khaki uniform and black berets of the Chasseurs Alpins. At Condamine-Chatelard the road twisted below the fortress Tournous, a whole city cut into the sheer face of the mountain with windows looking out of the cliff from an underground staircase of 2,000 steps.

Now the road narrowed to a single track, and the business got serious.

The Tour was starting up the peak called Col de Vars where in five miles the road climbs from 4,400 to 6,500. Up to now the racers had been all in one brightly colored cluster but here they began to string out. Ahead were jagged peaks still white with snow; far below the river boiled, milky with fresh snow water.

Press cars following the race began to pass the stragglers. "Does the Col start soon?" cried Tino Sabbadini, a laboring Frenchman laughing at himself. It was hairpin turn after another, snaking up a parapet. You could look straight down and see racers, look straight up and see racers.

Nobody was able to draw away alone. The leaders reached the summit in a pack and plunged down the other side, going fifty miles an hour, sixty for the desperados. The descent was a twisting terror, a shelf in a flat cliff, often with the outside curve marked only by stakes, and the shoulder of the narrow road 1,000 feet below.

Down and down the course twisted into a savage chasm, then almost immediately it started up again to the Col d'Izoard, the fiercest peak in the entire race, almost 7,200 feet high. That's more than a mile and a quarter, the full Derby distance. Horses break down running it on the flat. These brigands do it almost straight up on bikes.

Between peaks, the road became a dusty lane of crushed stone, but this stretch has been improved. Two years ago there were 400 punctures here, and the dust clouds were so dense that team managers drove past their own men without seeing them. When the race reaches terrain like this, the managers took a spare tire or two to their lesser men to carry around their necks like yokes, and the cars go on to attend the stars up front.

Near the summit of Izoard is a wilderness of craggy chimney-rocks called "La Casse Deserte," the deserted house. One of the cars on this Tour brought along a bronze plaque to set in the rock here as a memorial to Fausto Coppi, the Italian who was the greatest bike rider of all times. When he died a few months ago, all Europe declared a day of mourning for the "campionissimo," the champion above champions. It was here he started a spurt that simply shattered a Tour de France field.

Over the summit past dirty banks of snow, down another wildly twisting descent, they came whirling to the finish on the "Champ de Mars," the old field of war at the edge of this ancient fortified city. Just above them across a moat townspeople stood watching from the city walls, and from a sound truck there came a familiar tune.

"I hate to see," the music wailed, "that evening sun go down..."

SIMONSEN'S HOLD LEAD

The Simonsen's Insurance team holds the lead in the Industrial golf league in the second half with a 3-1/2 point margin over the Econowash-Laundry, 27 to 23-1/2. In third place is Cunningham's Restaurant with 21 points, followed by Struthers Wells with 20-1/2, and the Penn-Glade Hotel and Belz-Larson with 20 points.

Ross Fisher fired a blazing 35 for the week's low score. Jack Clarkson and Bill Simonsen, Jr. carded nifty 37s, and Joey Brindis and Johnny Smith ed out 38s. Three other golfers broke the 40 mark with 39s, Bob Blair, Lewis Carlson, and Dana Harland.

This week's results were: Warren Observer 6-1/2, Erickson's 3-1/2; Struthers Wells 7, Riverside Lanes 5; Blueberry 8, Loranger's 2; Econowash 6, Cunningham's 6; Carlson Motors 8, Solar 4; Sylvania Two 7, Keystone Powerfuel 1; Sylvania One 6-1/2, Penn-Glade Hotel 5-1/2; Belz-Larson 8-1/2, New Yorkers 3-1/2; and Simonsen's Insurance 8, National Forge 4.

LADY RESULTS

B. J. Fisher and Penny Barley tied with 84's for the low golf of the day in Wednesday's CVCC play. Joan Carter and Marie Hamilton were best with the putters, requiring only 27.

In the best net for par four holes the division winners were: First division, Helen Culbertson, 37; Second, Betty Sedwick, 42; Third, Becky Alexander, 44; Fourth, Ardis Kremer, Jane Conaway, and Phyllis Davis, 55.

The net winners for eighteen holes in each division: First division, B. J. Fisher, 68, Carol Blackman and Penny Barley, 69; Second division, Becky Kannen and Betty Sedwick; Third, Becky Alexander and Sally Gannoe; Fourth, Ardis Kremer and Betty Lucia.

Next week the special event will be a blind partner competition.

TOURNAMENT POSTPONED

The thirty-six hole medal play tournament which the Conewango Valley Country Club golfers were going to hold this week end has been postponed until next week. Another change in tournament plans permits the participants to play their two eighteen-hole rounds on Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday. The greater freedom should assure a much larger field.

It is a scratch tournament with the golfers participating within their own flights. Prizes will be provided by the committee in lieu of an entry fee. Inasmuch as the money used for these prizes has been provided by the golfers through their weekly events, all should enter so as to avail themselves of a return on their investment.

BENEFIT DAY

Fans of the young baseball players are reminded to keep Saturday, Aug. 13, in mind as that will be the day of the second annual County Hot Stove League Benefit Day at Wilder field. Officers of the organization met in the YMCA last evening to formulate plans for the Day's festivities which are slated to begin promptly at 1 p.m. The rain date for the affair is Saturday, Aug. 20, at which time the program will have to take place in Sheffield.

This event is primarily a source of income for the baseball group, and in addition it is a delightful pastime for the players and fans. Tickets will go on sale soon at one dollar, and all children under 16 will be admitted free of charge.

DUKES OPEN SEPT. 2

The Jamestown Dukes of the Western New York Semi-pro Football Conference will open their regular schedule on Friday night, Sept. 2, when Lockport journeys to Jamestown for a battle at Municipal stadium. The Dukes have an eight-game slate lined up for this season with two open dates yet to be filled. Four of the contests will probably be scheduled in their home stadium.

The eight members of the football conference are Lockport, Jamestown, Medina, Erie, Niagara Falls, N.Y., Niagara Falls, Ont., Batavia, and East Aurora, a new entry which replaces the now defunct Buffalo Bills.

It is also reported that on Saturday, Aug. 27, the Dukes will travel to Massillon, Ohio, to meet the Massillon Tigers, who for many years have been the Ohio state high school football champions.

NEW COACH AT EDINBORO

Loyal K. Park has succeeded Robert Thurton as head football and basketball coach at Edinboro STC. The 1953 graduate of Edinboro, who received all-state honors in football and basketball, will assume his duties at the college in September.

Park, who has played professional baseball in the Cincinnati chain, is leaving a successful coaching career behind him at Evans City high school in Butler county.

CVCC SWIMMING NEWS

Thirty-two of the Conewango Valley Country Club's swimmers, under the tutelage of Pat Madden, journeyed to the Lake Shore Country Club in Erie Wednesday where over 300 "fish" competed in an individual meet. Coach Madden announced Thursday that the Lake Shore team would be in Warren for a meet Monday, July 18, at 1 p. m. at the CVCC and that the local swimmers would travel to Lake Shore for a dual meet on Aug. 22, instead of Aug. 29 as previously published.

The Moonbrook Country Club has been added to the CVCC's slate as they will be in Warren on July 31, and the Madden team will go there on Aug. 7.

Local swimmers who placed in the championship meet Wednesday were: Jackie Doebler, a first in the girls' ten and under 25-yard freestyle event (16.9); Mary Lauf-fenberger, a fourth in the same event; Sike Kopf, a fifth in the boys' ten and under 25-yard freestyle; and Medorah Meachum, a fifth in the girls' 13-14 50-yard backstroke.

Coach Madden snared two firsts and two seconds in the boys' 17 and over classification. They were firsts in the 200-yard breaststroke (2:45.4) and the 200-yard individual medley (2:34.5) and seconds in the 100-yard butterfly and breaststroke.

FARM NEWS

'61 WHEAT ALLOTMENTS

According to the Warren County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, official notices of farm allotments for the 1961 wheat crop were mailed to farmers Monday, July 11, 1960. Most of the allotments differ only slightly from 1960 crop allotments, since the national acreage allotment remains at the minimum 55 million acres which has been in effect for the past 6 years. The farm allotments are based primarily on past wheat production history.

All growers who will produce more than 15 acres of wheat as grain in 1961 will be eligible to cast ballots in the July 21 referendum on marketing quotas for the 1961 crop. Growers who will have smaller acreages and those who are taking part in the feed wheat program are not eligible to cast ballots, since the wheat from such farms would not be subject to marketing quota penalties.

The referendum will decide important questions for wheat producers and the outcome will represent the will of those growers who take the trouble to cast their ballots.

If at least two-thirds of the growers who vote approve the quotas, then they will be in effect for the 1961 wheat crop, marketing penalties will apply to the 'excess' wheat of growers who do not comply with their farm allotments, and price support will be available at not less than 75 percent of parity -- the exact level to be announced soon.

MIDGETS

The Lesser Insurance team of the eastern division has recorded two straight victories on successive Tuesdays as they edged Bradford Savings and Loan, 2 to 1, on July 5 and slaughtered Allegheny Electronics, 19 to 4, on the 12th.

Edling was the winning moundsman in the first contest, his teammates garnering only three safeties to register the win.

In the second game three Lesser hurlers went to the mound and scattered five hits with Yurick picking up credit for the win. Two of those hits by Allegheny were a triple by Hinderliter and a homer by Nasman.

Grosch had two triples for Lesser in that game, while Gelotte, Shafer, and Hunter slapped out single three-base knocks.

In Brief

RUSSELL PAIR INJURED

Irene Childs, 16, and Timothy Childs, age four months, were slightly injured Thursday in a mishap which occurred on the Russell-Scandia road near the railroad tracks in Russell. The Childs auto was following a slow-moving truck, and when the operator became confused as to the intention of the truck's driver, Albert Rose, 60, also of Russell, the Childs auto rammed into the rear of the truck.

Damage to the auto was estimated at $300, and damage to the truck was estimated at $5. Irene Childs suffered a sprained right leg, and the infant suffered a bruised right eye.

JR. DRUM CORPS BUSY

The Warren Jr. Drum and Bugle Corps, sponsored by Kossuth Encampment 98, Odd Fellows, will march in the parade at Stockton, N.Y., on Saturday, July 16th, as their busy summer schedule continues. The families of corps members are asked to attend this event and are reminded there will be a location available for a family picnic.

Last Saturday the corps placed fourth in a parade at Salamanca, N.Y. On July 7th it appeared in the 70-unit Firemen's Parade at Sligo. The results of that parade have not yet been learned.

The local corps is instructed by Robert Anderson, Tom Wineriter and John Barr.

OFF TO JAMBOREE

Nineteen scouts from this area depart by train from Jamestown Sunday evening for the National Boy Scout Jamboree in Colorado. This year the boys from Chief Cornplanter Council will join with the unit from Oil City and travel under the leadership of William Myers of Oil City. The assistant scoutmasters will be Bill Kingsley of Titusville, and Leo Rapp of Follett Run rd., Warren. In addition to Mr. Rapp the local contingent will have several boys assuming the duties of junior leaders. They are Eric Sandblade, Steve Summers, and Bill Lombard.

The contingent of scouts will return home on August 1st.

INTERMEDIATES

Andy's Hotel of Sheffield continues to romp over its opponents as the Sheffield nine tripped Russell Brown Run Lumber, 15 to 7 last evening. Andy's tallied their runs in all innings but the first, while the visitors scored every one of their runs in the third frame. Elmquist smashed a triple for the winners, and Dan Langdon was the winning hurler.

COURT DOCKET CHANGES

One more case has been added to the list of cases which are to be disposed of today in Quarter Sessions court, and the case of the Commonwealth vs. Chester Walker, of Clarendon, for drunken driving has been continued until the next term of court.

Added to the list of cases on the docket is the Commonwealth vs. Mary Watt for abandonment. Also to be included is an additional non-support case, making a total of four which are to appear before the court. Five juveniles will be sentenced, also.

ONE OF THE MOST POPULAR events with the girls is the frequent cook-out. Around the campfire here are (standing) Sue Ensworth, Linda Esterbrook, and Sherry Clark; kneeling: Peggy Drum, Norma Kirk, Rae Suess, and Carol Johansson.

This evening thirty lads will visit Camp Birdsall Edey, and one of the special events planned is a cook-out with the girls. Hope everyone enjoys their meal.

THE COUNSELOR'S TENT was not necessarily the neatest tent on the grounds Wednesday, but it served as an adequate shelter for these girls when the early morning rain chased them inside.
